

FLAME

Suvarna Chauhan
MD/24/179

Copyright Page – Flame
© 2025 Suvarna Chauhan
All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means—electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise without prior written permission from the author.

This book is a work of creative photography and storytelling. All images and text are original works of the author. Any resemblance to real events, places, or individuals is purely coincidental.

For permissions, inquiries, or collaborations, contact:
suvarnachauhan@gmail.com
First Edition | 2025
Printed in India

Photoessay

A visual journey captured for a classroom assignment

About the author ~
Suvarna Chauhan is a Master of Design student at NIFT Panchkula, deeply passionate about design, films, and the layered meanings hidden within everyday objects. She finds inspiration in metaphors and symbolism, exploring how seemingly simple elements can hold profound significance. This project is an extension of that curiosity just like a matchstick's flame, which can symbolize warmth, destruction, transformation, or a fleeting moment of brilliance.

This photo essay explores the fragile yet powerful presence of fire through everyday objects like matchsticks, stoves, and pyres. It captures themes of ignition, transformation, vulnerability, and loss—showing how fire can nurture, destroy, or be extinguished. A visual reflection on energy, emotion, and the fleeting nature of existence. The location for the shoot was Zirakpur, pictures have been taken on iPhone.

A band-aid is meant to heal, restoring what is broken. A matchstick, however, burns to serve its purpose and is then discarded, beyond repair. Unlike wounds that can heal, a matchstick's fate is final, once consumed, it cannot be revived.

Matchstick sparks every flame—rural or urban—reminding us that even fire has a poetic (beautiful like a flower), everyday beauty rooted in our cultural fabric.

Twin flames

Fire never stays forever—it flickers, fades, and disappears, yet in its short life, it holds the power to transform everything it touches.

Burnt out matchsticks floating in water ~ once full of fire, now lifeless. A simple reminder that everything has its time before it fades away.

